

The National Institute of Fundamental Studies established by an Act of Parliament of the Democratic Socialist Republic of Sri Lanka in 1981 pursues basic scientific research. Among its aims and objectives are to initiate, promote and conduct research and original investigations into fundamental studies with particular emphasis on mathematics, physical and chemical sciences, life sciences, social sciences and philosophy, each taken in the broadest sense.

The Institute invites applications from Sri Lankan citizens for the Post of Director from eminent scientists with a proven track record in basic scientific research in any of the above disciplines, who are currently active in Research and Development activities. The Director will serve as the Chief Executive Officer and Accounting Officer of the Institute, and therefore must possess excellent interpersonal skills along with strong administrative abilities. The appointee should uphold the principles of academic excellence, transparency, accountability, democratic management, and effective, nonpartisan administrative leadership.
